Corneal edema? Here's the solution... ADSORBONAC® ...NaCl in Adsorbobase®

- effective in reducing corneal edema
- Marisi and Aquavella found in a study with 89 eyes that Adsorbonac "was uniformly well tolerated and resulted in improved acuity for a majority of patients with corneal edema."[1]
- a compatible form of osmotic therapy for patients wearing hydrophilic bandage lenses

NoIR SUNGLASSES

Your surgery patients will appreciate this addition to your post-op eye care package.

Why use NoIR?

1) Your cost is low. ($5 to $6.50 @ pair for Models 101 & 102, depending on quantity.)
2) A case and care card accompany each pair.
3) NoIR is guaranteed against breakage under reasonable use. We'll back your decision 100% on what is "reasonable."
4) The CONCEPT behind NoIR Sunglasses:
   * To control the total amount of energy the eye absorbs — both visible and invisible light. (All UV & almost all near IR light is absorbed.)
   * To provide a lens that does not appear "dark" to the human eye but transmits a very low level of visible light.
   * To provide a frame with side shielded temples which can be worn over prescription glasses (even cataract) or alone as a plano.
   * To make all the above features available at a reasonable cost.

Most Popular NoIR's:
Model 101...amber in color, 10% total light transmission
Model 102...grey-green in color, 18% total light transmission

NOTE: Lower transmissions available at increased cost. See literature. Plano only. No true grey available. Write or call collect.
